John Martino, 50, of Miami Beach, returned to Miami after 40 months in a Cuban prison, bearded, broke and 40 pounds lighter. A former partner in an electronics firm, he had been arrested in Havana while on a business trip.

Report Cuban Captives To Reach U. S. Today

Release of POWs Set, Miami Hears

MIAMI, Oct. 9 (UPI)—

The Miami Herald reported today that the release of 1113 captured Cuban invaders has been arranged and they may be brought to Miami today.

In its first edition, the Herald said the prisoners would arrive early today. In later editions, however, it said the transfer of the prisoners might be delayed but that it was still possible they would get to Miami today.

The newspaper said the delay was caused by the last minute scheduling of a meeting today between Premier Castro and James B. Donovan, the New York attorney who has been negotiating their release.

There were reports in Havana that the two men met secretly yesterday, but a spokesman for Mr. Donovan said he did not see the premier.

Reliable sources reported, however, that the prisoners were being moved from a prison on the Isle of Pines off Cuba's southern coast to prisons on the mainland.

Castro and Mr. Donovan met most recently Friday night, when they were colseted for more than seven hours. No details of their talks were made public officially, but they were believed near agreement on terms for the release.

The Cuban leader had demanded $62 million ransom for the prisoners. Mr. Donovan was believed to be offering him food and medicines of considerably less value, perhaps with a cash payment as well.

Other developments:

Boycott — International Longshoremen's Association officials in New York have called for a total boycott of ships servicing Cuba and Russia. ILA leaders yesterday called on their 60,000 members in all East Coast and Gulf ports to refuse to handle cargo for all vessels of any shipping line that goes to or from Soviet or Cuban ports. Thus the longshoremen went a step further than the U. S. government by including the Soviet in the boycott.

Keating — Sen. Kenneth B. (R., N. Y.) wants the U. S. to set a deadline for strong action on Cuba by the OAS, and if the OAS 'proves apathetic,' he demands the U. S. act 'on its own.' The Senator, in Washington, also urged that the U. S. Guantanamo base

Dorticos Fattens Up for Meatless Havana

Special to The Washington Daily News

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 —

Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos, surrounded by his bodyguards who look like the Latin cast from West Side Story, leaves for home today. Behind him are few broken hearts.

Dorticos' shrill attack on the United States at the United Nations was not his only spree. He fattened up for meatless Havana by eating his way thru two steaks a day during his stay here. He enjoyed his meals and the drinks.

"He went out of his way to make trouble," one New York policeman assigned to protect Dorticos from angry Cuban refugees confided. "I had to watch him when he was in the dining room, and he complained because I sat down."

To those familiar with security techniques in Cuba, Dorticos' chagrin is understandable. In the Havana manner, policemen are supposed to lounge against a wall, pointing burp guns at those they are protecting.

He used in an all-out radio propaganda campaign against Castro.
